25X1

1.  the Chinese Communists planned the following measures for the reception of sick and wounded prisoners of war repatriated from Korea. 25X1
- The designation of three field hospitals in Northeast China for receiving prisoners of war exclusively.
  - The provision of medical care and political education at the hospitals.
  - The investigation of the conduct of the prisoners of war during the period of their capture.
  - The establishment of collective farms in Northeast and Northwest China to provide employment for recovered war prisoners.
  - The establishment of veterans' homes solely for the care of disabled prisoners of war.
  - The dispatch of wounded and sick prisoners who are politically unreliable to a reform center north of Ch'angch'un (N 43-53, E 125-20).
  - The honoring of prisoners of war who exhibited political loyalty after capture and their assignment to political tasks in the Political Department of the Revolutionary Military Council. Some of these prisoners of war were to report to Chinese Communist troops on their capture and repatriation.
